The Nation's Animal Health Forum Since 1897.

The United States Animal Health Association (USAHA), the nation's animal health forum for over a century, is a science-based, national organization of official state and federal animal health agencies, national allied organizations, district representatives and individual members founded in 1897 to protect animal and public health.

The Association's mission is implemented through deliberations of science-based committees and the adoption of resolutions and recommendations, aimed at solving problems. USAHA has 32 committees, varying in size from 15 to 175 members.

USAHA operates with a small staff under direction of the Executive Committee, with oversight from the Board of Directors, which also determines policy. The Association headquarters are located in St. Joseph, Missouri.

USAHA has met annually since its founding in 1897 and produces a printed proceedings of each meeting. These proceedings represents the most complete history of the nation's animal health endeavors over the past century.

USAHA's mission is to:

- Serve as a forum for communication and coordination among state and federal governments, universities, industry and other groups on issues of animal health and disease control, animal welfare, food safety and public health.
- Serve as a clearinghouse for new information and methods that may be incorporated into laws, regulations, policy and programs.
- Act to develop solutions to animal-health related issues based on science, new information and methods and the ability to develop a consensus for changing laws, regulations, policies and programs.
